

JULIE ESHLEMAN

I have worked as a support worker, special education classroom teacher, teacher trainer, consultant in schools and home programs for children with autism, clinical lead for behaviour intervention day treatment programs at an autism center, and as an organisational consultant to support providers delivering services to individuals with disabilities and their families. I have a Masters degree in Education and Applied Behaviour Analysis and a post-graduate certificate in organisational psychology. I am a Texan who moved to London two years ago from Atlanta, Georgia in the United States. I like traveling to new places, reading, and helping change lives with behaviour analysis!

WHERE DOES PBS START? THE LONG AND SHORT OF PBS IN YOUR ORGANISATION

The science of behaviour is often considered a cornerstone for the disability services sector, but can sometimes be neglected in raising the full potential of a service organisation. While many service organisations recognise the importance of training staff in using positive behaviour supports while engaging with clients, many overlook best practices to use PBS in interactions between leadership teams and their staff teams. Come hear about how PBS can benefit your organisation combined with the science of organisational behaviour management (OBM)!
